13. At present, there are a number of social welfare schemes being implemented by various departments having individual set of database of the targeted beneficiaries. To have comprehensive service delivery mechanism with transparency in delivery of services, our Government has decided to integrate existing database of Aadhar, Permanent Account Number, Election Photo Identity Cards where uniqueness of common database is maintained. Seeding this common database with the departmental database being used for delivery of public services will be made for unique identification of beneficiaries that will help in reduction of time and cost in the delivery of services. Common data attributes of this unique database will be used for planning of new welfare schemes and to avoid duplication of welfare services.
